MARTINI LINGO

For the uninitiated, a martini is either gin or vodka stirred down with a touch of vermouth, though asking for one can be a tad esoteric. Here's all that's needed to order like a pro. To start, a barspoon of dry vermouth with Plymouth gin is our house standard. Let's go!

Dry	5 to 10ml of vermouth, considered the customary sipper's serve.
Bone Dry	A rinse in the glass, if that. We imagine the vermouth if it's any drier.
Wet	Vermouth at 15ml & up. Note, this means less of your chosen spirit.
Sweet	Sweet vermouth instead of dry vermouth, rather uncommon.
Perfect	Not a literal term, splits the vermouth portion 50/50 sweet & dry.
Dirty	We add a splash of olive brine, and garnish with two or more olives.
Gibson	A little cocktail onion is used as garnish instead.
With a Twist	A citrus twist garnish! Unless otherwise specified, we use lemon.
Burnt	Uncommon. An added splash or spray of smokey single malt scotch.

"One extra dirty, dry, burnt Gibson with Beefeater 24" is fun madness we'll gladly oblige, but "A Sipsmith martini with a twist" is absolutely fine too. Cheers!
